Open Letter To All Parents Of A.H.S. Students

Dear Parents:

Never before has there been such a need for the concern and involvement of parents, teachers, and students in the educational system of Appomattox High School. There are major problems that will need your support, your interest, and your decisions.

I believe that the P.T.A. is the best avenue for interpreting our community's wishes to the school. It's also a potent public relations arm of the school and its educational program.

With the many problems facing us, let's not allow events to force our community into acting; let our P. T. A. take the lead – Do your part! Attend the Appomattox High School P.T.A. meeting, Tuesday night, Sept. 23. Join us at 6:30 for a B.B.Q. chicken dinner (tickets will be sold through your son or daughter's homeroom) followed by a business session at 8:00 and an orientation program that will interest all of you.

Sincerely,
Dennis Torrence, Pres.
Appomattox H. S. – P. T. A.

Urged To Study '70 Wheat Program

Farmers in Appomattox county who will soon be planting their 1970 wheat crop should consider carefully the diversion features of the 1970 wheat program before they plant, according to J. F. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

"Producer should take a good look at one of the program's key features – the provision that allows them to divert up to 50 percent of their wheat allotment to conserving use and still earn diversion payments," the Chairman emphasized.

This provision, which provides for diversion payment based on 50 percent of the county loan rate times the farm's projected yield is aimed at avoiding production of 80 to 90 million bushels of unneeded wheat.

In view of mounting wheat surpluses in the world's major exporting nations because of large wheat crops in recent years, the U.S. cannot afford to continue producing excessive quantities of wheat, Mr. Alvis said.

"It seems to me this extra diversion provision again, in the 1970 program, is a good way for our farmers to make a contribution to improving the wheat situation and still maintain their income," the Chairman said.

Signup for the 1970 program will be announced later. However, detailed program information is available at the Appomattox County ASCS Office.

The Pastor Speaks

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE EDIFACE COMPLEX

Lesson for September 21, 1969

Background Scripture: 2 Samuel 7:1-29; 12:1-23; 1 Kings 1: 32-37; 2:1-4; 6:1-38; 8.
Devotional Reading: 1 Kings 8: 22-30.

In the reign of King David, worship was one of the most important unifying factors in the nation. Their worship of the one God brought closer together these people of various tribal backgrounds. There are some today who observe that worship in America today often seems to be one of the causes of our national disunity. Even in this day of increasing ecumenism among Christians, we still have difficulty in coming together for common experiences of worship.

We are often like the man who said, "We will each worship God in our own way; you in your way and I in God's way." Perhaps we are too preoccupied with determining which is the "right way" to worship God. This was the very question which the Samaritan woman raised with Jesus at the well. His answer, Jesus indicated that place and form are always secondary to the spirit and sincerity of the worshipper.

Priorities

King David wanted to build a temple in Jerusalem as a symbol of unifying his nation under God. But God told him that the temple could come later. A central place of worship did not guarantee a unified people. The place of worship would not be nearly so important as the spirit in which the nation worshipped. This must have disappointed David for, like us, he had somewhat of an "edifice complex." As any churchman knows, it is always easier to raise money for a new church building than for an expanded program. In the new nation of Israel, however, David was to concentrate on program and the temple, he was assured, would come later.

It is natural for us to have our preferences in terms of where and how to worship. Yet, perhaps all of us could afford to give up some of our rigidity on this subject. The experience of John Wesley is instructive for us. He had been born into a religious home, his father an Anglican priest, So John had received a good preparation for the Christian faith. Yet his soul was restless and he was constantly searching for new insights.

"Strangely Warmed"

On May 24, 1758, he went to a service of worship in the magnificent St. Paul's Cathedral in London. There was nothing special in this service – its features were dictated by historical Anglican usage – but the closing words of the anthem seemed to speak especially to him:

O Israel, hope in the Lord!
For with the Lord there is steadfast love, and with him there is plenteous redemption,
And he will redeem Israel from all his iniquities. (Psalms 130: 7,8).

Later that same evening, Wesley attended a meeting of Moravians on Aldersgate Street. He had first come into contact with these Christians on a voyage to Georgia. He had found that in the midst of the most terrifying storms at sea these people exhibited a remarkable faith in God's providence, singing their psalms with joy while others on the ship cowered in fright.

God's Touch

Thus, on the night of May 24, 1738, John Wesley, a priest of the Church of England, sat in a meeting of humble Moravians and while reading Martin Luther's "Preface to the Epistle to the Romans," had a unique spiritual experience. Writing of it in his diary, he said: "At about a quarter before nine. . .I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ – Christ alone for my salvation."

He had found what he was looking for and two entirely different kinds of worship had prepared his heart to receive it. There was for him no one "right way." In the beauty of the Anglican service and the simplicity of the Moravian meeting, he had felt God's touch.

Huguenots Meet

The Suzanne Rochet Chapter Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin in the Colony of Virginia met on September 13th at Tinker Mt. Motel near Roanoke. Mrs. Daniel Bowman, President, presided over the business session at which time an increase of seventy members for the year was reported by Mrs. Raymond Epling, State President and Chapter Advisor. A tribute was read to the late Mrs. William Letcher Pannill, a former member.

Following lunch, an interesting program entitled "Who are the French", was presented by Dr. John E. Manahan of Charlottesville. Going back to 1000 B. C., he identified the racial strains that make up the French people.

An invitation was accepted for the May 1970 meeting to be held in Martinsville.

ASC Ballots Must Be Certified

Farmers are receiving by mail the official ballots for Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation community committee election, according to Appomattox County ASC Committee Chairman, J. P. Alvis, Jr.

He reminded farm voters that two envelopes accompany each ballot. After a voter has marked his ballot he should fold it and seal it in the plain envelope. The plain envelope should then be signed by the voter because its purpose is to insure secrecy of the ballot.

After sealing the ballot in the plain envelope the voter then should put the plain envelope into the second envelope which is addressed to the Appomattox County ASCS Office and seal it. He should immediately sign his name on the back of this envelope on the flap used to fill in the date; then mail the envelope.

When the certified envelopes are received in the county office they are immediately placed in a sealed ballot box until 9:00 a.m. September 19, 1969 when they will be counted at the County Office, Chairman Alvis said. Ballot counting is open to the public. After certifications are checked, the sealed plain envelopes are removed from the certified outer envelopes and shuffled together before being open and the votes counted.

Two "Sue's" In Fla. Paper

Two local teens captured the spotlight in the Pompano Beach Florida Tribune this month -- the result of their visit earlier in the season.

Featured were Suzanne Hendricks and Susan Noble, of Appomattox, who worked all summer to take a bus ride to Florida.

When their bus schedule was rearranged – and they had to take the regular bus schedule rather than the "express" they had all kinds of unexpected delays. The last 75 miles of the trip they rode on the floor after giving their seats to some elderly people.

They were guests of Sue Noble's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hinricks in Cypress Harbor.

Sue sold cosmetics this summer in order to make the trip, with Suzanne "typing bow" for the little girls' dresses made by Appomattox Garment Co.

Now they hope to be back in the Sunshine State for Easter vacation. The Pompano Beach writer, Michael Couture complimented both girls for their friendliness and added, "With their enthusiasm and attitude, they would certainly be welcomed" on return trips.

Susan Noble is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Noble. Suzanne is the daughter of Mrs. Eileen McCormick.
